"I will work to preserve the Tuesday, Aug. 6 primary," Thornburgh said Monday. "This is difficult due to the recent ruling by the federal court."

According to Thornburgh, the court will have to approve other changes to the election calendar for the primary to occur as scheduled.

"We are required by federal and state law to meet certain deadlines pertaining to overseas military ballots, advance ballots and notification to the public of the election," said Thornburgh. "We will ask the court to consider these deadlines when making their final ruling.'
