Royals coach accepts fan's apology

CHICAGO (AP) — Kansas City Royals coach Tom Gamboa said he accepts the apology of a 15-year-old fan who attacked him on the field during a game and hopes the boy learns from his "tragic mistake."

Gamboa said Thursday he would like to see the boy receive probation and community service because he was already held for a month in juvenile detention after the September attack at Comiskey Park.

"I can't see a 15- or 16-year-old kid being thrown down the drain for making a tragic mistake," Gamboa said while testifying at the teen's sentencing hearing.

Gamboa, himself a father of five, added afterward: "I sure hope he turns out OK."

The boy apologized to Gamboa during the start of the hearing in juvenile court. The hearing is scheduled to resume Friday.

"Being incarcerated has made me realize how stupid my actions were," said the boy, whose name is being withheld because of his age.

The boy was released to his family last month after pleading guilty Oct. 21 to one count of aggravated battery and two counts of mob action in the Sept. 19 attack at the Chicago White Sox that was televised live.

The boy's father, William Ligue Jr., 35, also was charged. He has pleaded innocent to three felony counts of aggravated battery and one felony count of mob action.

Ligue has been in custody at Cook County Jail since the attack and on Thursday a judge agreed to reduce his bail to $10,000 from $200,000, said Jerry Lawrence, a spokesman with the Cook County State's Attorney's Office.

A spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's Office said Ligue had not posted bond by late afternoon.

In his apology, the boy, neatly dressed in a shirt and tie, told the court Gamboa did nothing to provoke the attack.

Following their arrests, the father and son, both shirtless, contended Gamboa had made an obscene gesture.

Gamboa said he was glad the boy's apology made it clear he had done nothing to antagonize them.

"That's just not a part of who I am," Gamboa said.

The coach talked about the attack that he said "felt like I got hit by a truck."

His head hit the ground so hard, he said that he temporarily lost his hearing. He also suffered cuts and bruises.

Gamboa, now the Royals' bullpen coach, said he hopes this incident is a wake-up call for the teen.

"I hope this is the fork in the road that prompts him to go the right way," Gamboa said.

Nuggets lose to Detroit Pistons, 89-63 and Ben Wallace had 13 rebounds.

James Posey led Denver with 21 points, and rookie Nene Hilario came off the bench to score 10.

Detroit shot 48 percent compared to Denver's 32 percent.

The Nuggets' turnover total of 21 nearly matched their field-goal total of 23.

Detroit, the NBA's top defensive team, held Denver to within two points of the franchise record-low of 61 points.

Billups, who starred at Denver's George Washington High School and at the University of Colorado in addition to playing for the Nuggets from 1998-2000, keyed a 9-0 run in the third quarter that padded the lead to 58-37.

Billups had three 3-pointers in the period, the last of which put Detroit up 69-42.
