

Organic material abundant in fall

With the abundance of organic materials in the autumn season and directly applying leaves or garden refuse to an area prior to tillage, there is always a question about adding too much organic material to a soil.

Standard organic materials can be added in fairly large quantities without many problems developing. It helps if the materials are partially decomposed (composted) or finely shredded so they can begin the process of decomposition rapidly.

Difficulty can arise when organic materials that have a high nutrient concentration are applied. Usually this comes in the form of animal manure, especially concentrated manure, where high rates of application can be too much.

High nutrient levels or imbalances of nutrients can cause plant production problems the next season.

In addition, high levels of nutrients can leach into ground water or surface waters.

Some concentrated manure contain levels of salt that can become excessive for certain flower and vegetable plants. The salt problems become compounded in dry seasons when natural leaching of salts through the soil is slowed down and salts accumulate.

area.

Also, be careful about multiple year applications. In some cases, there is a need to wait two to four years between applications.

For general soil improvement in terms of looseness and workability of the soil, application of composted yard waste (leaves, grass clippings and similar materials) work much better than applications of animal manure, especially concentrated manure.

As a general rule, use caution when applying concentrated manure without a soil test and/or a general recommendation as to application rates per unit

4-H seeks youths from ages 7 to 19 to join

This is for the families with youths from the ages of 7 to 19. Yes, you are the ones that 4-H is looking for.

You need to be willing to learn about new and exciting projects and be willing to get involved in many of our fun activities. In 4-H there are never-ending possibilities of what you can achieve.

Through the many projects, you will not only learn how to make an end table in woodworking, but the responsibility that goes with it. You will not just learn how to bake a loaf of wheat bread, but how to tell what went wrong when it does not turn out right.

You will learn how to care for your pig, steer or sheep, and then how to show the animal and answer questions about it. In every project the 4-Hers learn how to make something better than it was before.

You have to fill out a record book; this helps you keep track of what happened throughout the 4-H year. I will tell you from experience, record books are not always fun, but when you are a senior in high school, the records that you kept will help you fill out applications for colleges and scholarships.

You learn to help youth younger than yourself. This is part of the leadership in the 4-H program. The other part is being an officer in you 4-H Club.

You are elected into an office such as president, vice president, secretary, treasurer or recreation and song leader. There are many more offices, so no one is ever left out.

For more information about the 4-H Program, you can contact LaDonna or Dana at the extension office by calling (785)-899-4880. You can go to the extension office on the third floor of the Court House if you would like pamphlets about 4-H.

So come on, and join all the 4-H fun in your community today.

Despite setback, company pushes for wind farm

EL DORADO (AP) — Despite another setback and slim chances of success, Kansas Wind Power LLC is not losing hope that it will eventually build a wind farm near Leon.

The Butler County Commission voted 2-1 Tuesday to send the company's proposal back to the county planning commission, which approved the proposal on Nov. 6.

If approved again at the planning commission's meeting Dec. 3, the proposal must then receive a unanimous 3-0 vote of approval by the county commission. The unanimous vote is necessary because 34 percent of residents near the proposed site have signed a protest petition.

Still, Kansas Wind Power is teaming with a new partner, Pamoda Wind Power of La Jolla, Calif., to work on the Leon project. One of the project's main obstacles will be winning over County Commissioner Randy Doll. Doll voted against sending the project back to the planning commission, citing residents' desire to preserve open spaces and uncertainty about the wind farm's effect on wildlife, tourism and property values.
