ator-news land

First graders Brooke Keim (left) and Molly Hernandez tried to figure out if they could cover any more squares in a game of "book bingo" at the Family Reading Night at West Elementary School last Monday. The school site council sponsored a hot dog feed before, served by the Goodland Photo by Pat Schiefen/The Goodland Star-News

Hot dogs fill stomachs; reading feeds minds

By Pat Schiefen

The Goodland Star-News

Parents and students from West Elementary School ate hot dogs served by the Goodland Rotary Club on Tuesday night, then split into groups for some reading fun.

The West Elementary School Site Council put on the hot dog feed to buy books for the district's reading rotation program. The event raised $500, which will be matched by Wal-Mart.

This was the first year the school had invited parents and their kids to come and read.

Amity Ihrig, librarian at West, recruited guests to help her read to kids and their parents, including Marcy Melia, children's librarian at Goodland Public Library; Curtis Duncan, broadcaster at KLOE radio; and Ron Schilling, the Cow Guy. Duncan was preparing to read "Green Eggs and Ham" by Dr. Seuss. Teachers Shelley Kirk, Emily Braxmeyer and Donna Whitmore put together a "Read into the Sun- was a book of their own.

matters of record

The following fines were paid in sic rule governing speed of vehicles of vehicles.

Robert C. Griffin, $144 for for basic rule governing speed of ing.

and $10 for no seat belt.

Mark W. Steenson, $166 for reck-

$66 for basic rule governing speed

Jan. 22 — Emery L. Brown, $96

our office at (785) 899-2338 to report errors. We believe that news should be fair and factual. We want to keep an accurate record and appreciate you calling to our attention any failure to live up to this stan-

Jan. 23 — Vu T. Phan, $366 for ing.

less driving, $66 for speeding and for speeding.

District Traffic

the Sherman County District Court:

Jan. 19 — Michael W. Franklin,

Larry R. Graham, $118 for over-

William T. Heathman, $132 for Ran Shifrin, $166 for motor car-

William G. Stallion, $126 for

John B. Yavenue, $132 for speed-

Jan. 20 — Chapman R.

Jan. 21 — Wollis W. Jones, $241

Fred A. Ridley, $126 for improper driving on laned road.

Cronquist, $246 for failure to yield to emergency vehicle.

for overweight load.

rier safety rules and regulations.

improper driving on laned road.

$191 for first conviction for driving while suspended.

weight load.

speeding.

set" session. Kirk, in Western dress, read a Cinderella story, "Cowboy Prince," about a cowboy who wanted to go to a dance. His f"airy cow mother" turned one of his cows into a white stallion to ride to the ball.

Pat Thompson's and Janice Pearson's session was "Proud to be an American Reader." They had a small coloring book about American symbols and a sheet talking about the meaning of each of the folds in folding an American flag.

'Color My World" in the session by Pat Pickett, Janet Davis and Cassondra Van Allen focused on how colors combine to make other colors. The teachers passed out paddles with the primary colors, red, green and blue. Two paddles of differing colors could be held to the light to give another

Devlin Mull and Linda Lucas led a group in Book Bingo. Kids matched words about reading and books on a card. The prize for the winning readers with vehicle.

proper parking.

Ranch owners respond in prairie-dog battle

By Jan Katz Ackerman

Colby Free Press

Six of seven defendants are fighting a lawsuit filed against them by Logan County commissioners trying to enforce a 1901 state law allowing townships to eradicate prairie dogs without a landowner's permission.

Haverfield of Russell Springs, Robert G. Barnhardt Jr. of Bucklin and Donald and Lillian Becker of Winona claim state law protects them from the suit.

Dixie Surratt of Panhandle, Texas, filed a separate reply, while Maxine Blank of Willard, Utah, the seventh defendant, has not responded to the suit.

The landowners, to varying degrees, say they want to try less drastic control methods than poisoning all their land, including possible reintroduction of the rare blackfooted ferret.

Neighbors say prairie dogs are escaping from the uncontrolled fields and infesting their land.

In August, Commissioners Doug Mackley, Carl Uhrich and Nick Scott wrote all Logan County landowners that starting Oct. 1, anyone facing a formal complaint about uncontrolled prairie dogs would law requiring landowners to control the squirrels.

The county sent a contractor to start killing the prairie dogs, but the Haverfields and others moved cattle into the area, blocking the poison application.

As of December, commissioners said, 47 residents had complained about one or more of the defendants, claiming the landowners were preventing the county from poisoning the prairie dogs.

County Attorney Andrea Wyrick filed a lawsuit on behalf of the commissioners to enforce compliance Rathbun wrote. and force the landowners to remove

In January, the commissioners asked Judge Jack Lively, a senior judge appointed to the case by state Supreme Court Chief Justice Kay McFarland, to force the landowners allow the county to kill the prairie

Landowners Larry and Elizabeth Uhrich said prairie dogs infest ment of Interior to allow reintroducabout 18,000 acres of Logan County land. Mike Mitchner of the Kansas Wildlife and Parks Department at Pratt, said about 130,000 acres in the state harbor prairie > Wichita attorney Randall Rathbun representing, the Haverfields, Barnhardt and the Beckers filed a response to the county lawsuit. It claims state law protects the landowners from what he calls a "nuisance" lawsuit.

Rathbun said state law protects and encourages development and improvement of farmland for production of food and other agricultural products.

The landowners claim prairie dogs are an "at-risk species" and have been named as a candidate for the federal list of endangered and threatened wildlife three times

"With the ongoing federal and have 15 days to comply with state state concern to preserve this species (prairie dog)," Rathbun's response said, "one has to wonder why this county would drag these ranchers before this court to seek a remedy that in the defendant's experience is unprecedented.' The response said the defendants believe the Kansas Farm Bureau's opposition to the congressionally mandated reintroduction of the endangered black-footed ferret is pushing the eradication. "Apparently, the Farm Bureau has somehow concluded that this is a threat which must be opposed," In November, state and federal Oakley.

cattle from the land where poison wildlife officials held meetings in Logan County to talk about reintroduction of the black-footed ferret, a rare predator, once thought to be extinct, which lives in prairie dog colonies and feeds primarily on prairie dogs.

Court documents show the Haverfields and Barnhart have an Logan County Commissioner agreement with the U.S. Departtion of the ferret on their property to help control prairie dogs.

> They claim the county trying to force them to eradicate prairie dogs is a "deprivation of a valuable property right."

Surratt, like the Haverfields,

Barnhardt and the Beckers, claims townships, not the county, have the right to enforce prairie dog control. Surratt's attorney, Allan Hurlbutt of Sharon Springs, said in paperwork filed Feb. 21 in Logan County District Court, that state law authorizes only township boards to eradicate prairie dogs. Donald Hoffman of Hays, a special counsel assisting Wyrick, replied that a previous county commission on July 31, 1981, entered into an agreement with all townships in Logan County to assume responsibility for prairie dogs.

In their motion for an injunction, Wyrick and Hoffman are asking the judge to force the landowners to move cattle from land infested by

The county alleged the landowners put the cattle to pasture to delay the county's use of the chemical

Surratt claims she did not intentionally pasture cattle on her land to delay chemical use and claims to have spent "almost $1,000 on materials to exterminate (prairie dogs) as recently as the spring of 2006."

Blank has not filed a reply with the court. A hearing in the case has been scheduled for 8 a.m. Mountain Time on Wednesday, April 4, in Agricultural consultant, sprayer joins bank to start new profession well as to cover operating expenses 1982," Graber said. "During my

A familiar face in Goodland has taken on a new profession. Dean Graber, a longtime agricultural con-Bankwest in mid-January as vice president and ag loan officer. "I figured 30 years was a nice Zachary E. Sanders, $126 for ba- first conviction of driving while round figure," said Graber, "and suspended and $60 unlawful act when this chance to do something different came up, I decided to do Jan. 24 — Mark M. Fellers, $126

Graber said he spent the last 30 Daran M. Hodges, $132 for imyears as an agricultural consultant and small commercial and residen-Joseph D. Lowe, $156 for speedtial sprayer. He said although he has worked with agriculture, he had no knowledge of banking. Farmers use bank loans to buy land and equipment as

The Goodland Star-News until crops are harvested, he said. slow time ... I was a part-time sub-They also use operating loans to pay for seed and costs of irrigation. "I have had a lot of things to learn sultant and crop sprayer, joined and get up to speed on," Graber said.

The new loan officer said he grew up on a farm outside of Hesston in rural Harvey County. He graduated from Moundridge High School in 1971, attended Wichita State University for a year and transferred to Kansas State University. In 1975, he received a Bachelor of Science in natural resource management, soil and water.He moved to Goodland, working for Agricultural 1976 to 1981. He also sold seed for Stauffer Seed for a year.

"I became self-employed in Sept. said.

stitute bus driver for the school and have worked part-time for the Farm Service Agency.

He met his wife Barb in 1978, Garber said, and they have lived in the same home since 1980. She has been a special education aide at Central Elementary School for 15 years. Graber said he sings in the quartet, Barbershop Connection, with Mel Pfau, Jeff Mason and Kelly Beek but quit singing in the barbershop chorus because he didn't have the time.

"I hope to be over my training Technology Co. of McCook from period and be able to get out with people and talk to them about any of their banking needs," Graber corrections DREAMING UP THE IDEAL The Goodland Star-News will RETIREMENT correct any mistake or misunder-IS YOUR JOB. standing in a news story. Please call

HELPING YOU GET THERE IS OURS.

Robert L. Raun, $144 for speed-

Whether retirement is down the road or just around the corner, if you're working toward your goals now, the better off you'll be. At Edward Jone's, we take a long-term perspective. So, we recommend our clients buy quality investments and hold onto them.

To learn more about why Edward Jones make sense for you, call today.

www.edwardjones.com Member SIPC

Edward Jones MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

First National Bank would like to announce the retirement of LaVona Rand after 15 years of service to her friends and customers at First National Bank.

Thank you for all the memories!

www.fnb.com

First National Bank www.fnb.com

Bird City, Colby, Goodland, Kirk, Oberlin, Quinter, Sharon Springs, St. Francis

FDIC)

TEXAS RED BAR-B-Q will be at Frontier Ag on March 12 to March 15 Beef brisquet • Turkey Breast • Chicken Halves • Sausages • Pork Ribs

Fountain Drinks, Chips

and Snacks available also inside!

Formerly Frontier Equity Exchange in Goodland