Pair marries on beach in Mexico

land and Aaron M. Green of Tucson, They wore tea-length tiffany blue Ariz., were married Saturday, Oct. 6, at Cielo en Tierra, on the beach at Rocky Point, Mexico.

Justice Jetro Castaneda officiated at the ceremony.

Teresa Swayne of Tucson and formerly of Goodland is the bride's mother. The groom's parents are Jeff Green of Tucson and Angela Alu Green of Tucson. Martha Buchholz of Arvada and formerly of Burlington and Mary Pierce of Highlands Ranch, Colo., are her grandmothers. Barbara Green of Yuma is his grandmother.

The bride was given by Jim Marks, friends of the bride and groom. She wore a 2-piece ivory silk shantung gown. The strapless gown has a double French bustle with a sweep train and a corset back. Her bouquet was made of 36 red roses, tied in a nosegay, wrapped in tiffany blue ribbon and fastened with dark aqua pushpins. The bridesmaid's bouquets were the same but smaller in size and tied with chocolate ribbon.

Jennifer Begley of Gilbert, Ariz., was the matron of honor and Brodi Banowetz of Queen Creek, Ariz., was the maid of honor. Whitney Shetterly of Scottsdale, Lana Buchholz, sister-in-law of the bride, of Forsyth, Ill., and Sawyer Marks of Mortgage.

Je t'aime M. Buchholz of Good- Park City, Utah, were the attendants. satin dresses with a chiffon overlay and a chocolate tie around the empire waist.

> Chad Pajerski, friend of the groom and college roommate, of Phoenix, Ariz., was the best man. Groomsmen were Seth Alu of Tucson, Chris Aguilar of Phoenix, Matthew Boone of Mesa and Colby Marks of Park City, Utah.

> The groom, best man and groomsmen wore white guayabera's (Mexican Wedding shirts) with drawstring linen pants. A meal was served of traditional Mexican food.

The couple stayed a few extra days in Mexico at a beach front hotel and will spend three weeks in Italy and Spain in 2008 for their honeymoon. The couple will live in Gilbert, Ariz.

A group of 90 people traveled to Rocky Point for the wedding including the bride's 102-year-old grandmother.

The bride is the co-owner and senior loan officer for Green Mortgage in Gilbert. She has been a loan officer for five years. The groom graduated from the University of Arizona in Tucson and is a 1999 graduate of Arizona State University Law School in Tempe. He is the chief executive officer for Green

Wind chills have different effect on plants

When the weather man reads the temperature on the evening weather map they often follow it with the wind chill.

The term sometimes used is "it feels like", which usually makes us want thicker coats and warmer gloves if we are headed out side. Wind chill can have a profound effect on humans and animals but the effect differs for plants.

What effect does wind chill have on plants? With warm blooded animals and humans wind chill affects their ability to keep warm. However, plants do not respond to wind chill indexes as do warmblooded animals because they do not need to maintain a temperature above that of their surroundings. For example, a wind chill of 40 degrees below zero at a temperature of zero degrees Fahrenheit will not cause any more cold injury to plant tissue than a wind chill index of 20 degrees below zero at zero degrees Fahrenheit. However, though the cold temperatures may not damage plants, wind alone is desiccating and can dry plant tissues. Plant tissues require moisture to survive and a high wind velocity can cause moisture loss. This desiccation may be great enough to injure or even kill tissue, particularly the smaller size wood as in peach twigs, apple spurs or blackberry canes. There is no scientific evidence to show that an increasing wind chill index will directly increase plant damage due to cold injury.
