

Talent show to feature many acts

B-52s, bankers Dan Hayden of Bankwest, Sarah Hill of People's State Bank, Lyle Hammer of Western State Bank and Kelly Leach, formerly of First National Bank; and the Supremes, school employees Marie Elias and Linda Quint and former school secretary Yvonne Koehler.

Briana Linin loved butterflies and the symbol for the talent show is a drawing on a butterfly.

Linin said she counted the money in the jars this week, and the B-52s were in the lead with nearly $81, followed by the Blues Brothers with $78 and the Supremes with $33. The jars at the schools will be picked up today and the others Saturday morning.

The contestants will be divided into four age groups, she said, Tiny, up to third grade; Junior, fourth through sixth grades; Teen, junior high and high school; and adult.

First and second prizes will be awarded for each group, and one act will win $100 as Best of Show. The sorority donated the cash prize, and prizes for first and second were donated by businesses.

For Tiny, first prize is a Webkinz animal and one accessory donated by Jacque's Hallmark and second is gift certificates from McDonald's.

For Junior, first is dinner for four from Gambino's and second is movie bucks from the Sherman Theatre. For Teen, first is a Goodland Activities Center pass and movie rentals from Smitteo's Videos and second is movie bucks from the theatre.

For adults, first is a free night's stay at the Holiday Inn Express and second is a gift certificate from the Wonderful House Chinese restaurant.

Each act is limited to three minutes. A grand piano and sound system will be provided, but performers need to bring any additional instruments, props and audiovisual support they need. Performances must be in good taste.

The judges — Curtis Duncan, an on-air personality at KLOE radio;

Mary Ellen Coumerilh of Goodland; and Karen McKinley, an adult tap student in the Right Combination Dance Studio in Burlington — will decide who wins first and second in each group. The Best in Show will be decided by the judges and an audience vote.

Committee members are Kannady, Koren Dechant, Emilee McGuire, Travis Blake, Kim Linin and Janda and Brian Linin. Mr. Linin will be the master of ceremonies for the talent show.

Mrs. Linin said she had set the deadline for entries of Saturday but will continue to take them after that. She said about half the target number of acts have given verbal commitments, but she doesn't have many paid entries yet.

the same boards on their arms. He turns to St. Peter and says this didn't seem fair, as it was the same as in Hell.

So St. Peter told the man to look closer, and he saw that the people were happy and healthy because they were helping each other.

"Here, we feed each other," Peter said.

Wilson said he had seen that in Sherman County and that the banquet was proof that people here were helping each other.

Then he read a poem written for the evening: "The Farm-City Banquet is a great way to show our interdependence with each other, also.

"It's good for farm folks to eat with their city brother, because in the end, we all benefit when we can serve each other."

The event was hosted this year by farmers and ranchers of Sherman County. Chad Wolf, master of ceremonies and a Chamber of Commerce board member from S&T Communications, thanked the sponsors, including the Sherman County Farm Bureau Association, Frontier Ag, ADM Grain, Goodland Yost Farm Supply, S&T Communications, Wal-Mart, Eagle Communications, the Goodland Elks Lodge and the Chamber. Special thanks went to Amy Sederstrom and Toni Ackerman of Farm Bureau, farmer Jeff Deeds, agent Dana Belshe of the Sunflower Extension District, Darren Kannady of First National Bank for the sound and music system, farmer Steve Evert for catering and the Sherman County 4-H Junior Leaders for serving the dinner.

several years, taking newborn babies until they were released and adopted.

After eight years at the Holyoke beet pile, Great Western Sugar offered Pfau a job as a field man and the family moved to Fort Morgan, Colo. After training, he was transferred to the Yuma district and the family moved again.

In Yuma, he was approached to run for the Colorado Jaycees state president, and campaigning all over the state, he won in a landslide.

In 1979, Pfau was offered a management position at the Great Western Sugar plant in Goodland. As the children grew, the family became active in the Methodist Church and school activities and made many friends.

Dale Goodwin of the Goodland State Bank, now Bankwest, lured Pfau out of the sugar business and made him vice president of agriculture loans. Pfau handled accounts for all sizes of farms and made many strong friendships with the farm people and their families.

Duell said Pfau loves trains and antique cars, and owns a 1926 Model T that he brings out for family times. He also uses it to escort a bride and groom from their wedding to the reception, complete with champagne. The car was christened MELINDA (Mel-Linda) and has flowers on the radiator for special occasions.

Pfau builds and flies radio controlled airplanes, and he organized the Flatland Flyers Club. On days when the wind is still and the temperature warm enough, he can be found at the flying field out by Memorial Field.

Another interest for Pfau is singing, and he has sung in a church choir for more than 40 years. He has driven to Colby for several years to sing with the Tumbleweed Chorus. About 19 years ago, he helped form a quartet, the Barbershop Connection, which entertains when invited. The men have so much fun singing together, sharing jokes and rehearsing it has become a favorite pastime.

"Their wives have found that if they don't get to sing as often as they wish, their husbands get grumpy," Duell said.

Pfau's other interests include the American Legion and the Legion baseball program, being a handy man and helping build shelves at the Goodland Churches Thrift Shop, helping coordinate the Genesis food project, Methodist Men and delivering Meals on Wheels.

"If you see a white pickup with plates that say, IFLYRC, it's Mel Pfau," Duell said.
