Goodland FCCLA members in national magazine

Goodland High Family, Career and Community Leaders of America members have been pictured on the cover of Teen Times, the organization's national magazine, and one of the club's projects made the magazine's pages.

Brennen Clouse, state president, was on the cover of the November/December issue with other members from around the country, and he and Julica Bonsall, state first vice president, were on the back cover with an article about Phase II of the Ultimate State Officer Academy, held Sept. 29 to Oct. 3, in Washington. More than 200 officers and advisors went to the capitol to expand their abilities through "Capitol Leadership."

Advocacy training, networking, professionalism and etiquette were just a few of the topics explored during the training. All of those attending were in a group picture in front of the Capitol, and some were in other pictures.

The Goodland chapter's "Box-it-Up for Red Cross" project is listed and pictured under "Chapters in Action" in the March/April edition. Goodland Wal-Mart donated 280 unused lunch boxes to the chapter for them to fill and donate to the American Red Cross. Members gathered about 1,800 household and hygiene items to fill the boxes.

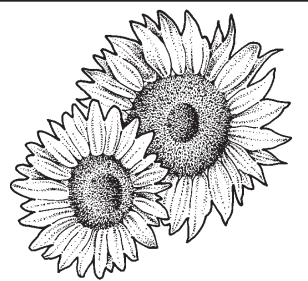

The feature in the magazine highlights projects done by chapters across the country.
