New app emails person's ideas

I found a new app that just made my life simpler - Instacorder. When I'm driving down the road and a thought pops in my head that I don't want to forget,

I simply press and hold the big button, say what I want to remember, then let go of the button. Instacorder instantly emails me my voice note.

I've tried other voice recording apps, but I would forget that I recorded a note. Since I regularly check my email and process my inbox to zero, having my note emailed to me gives me that peace of mind that I'm not going to forget that I made a note to not forget something.

Instacorder is free and available for the iPhone. If you need a convenient way to capture thoughts when it's not convenient, check it out.
