Writers invited to workshop Saturday

Always wanted to write a book? Have a manuscript hidden in your closet? Grab a pen and dust off that manuscript!

Author Jordyn Redwood will teach a mini-writer's workshop from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. (Mountain Time) on Saturday at Cuppa Joe Espresso, 216 W. Washington, St. Francis.

The workshop will cover the four elements of a novel - structure, emotion, conflict and thought - and is suitable for beginning to advanced authors.

"The four elements were a way ancient cultures could understand the building blocks of the universe and catch a glimpse into their own spiritual structure. Humans have an inherent understanding of story. It is woven into our DNA," Redwood said. "Identifying those elements and including them in your story will help the reader resonate with your writing."

Redwood is a pediatric emergency room nurse by day, suspense novelist by night. She is host of "Redwood's Medical Edge," a blog devoted to helping authors of contemporary and historical fiction write with medical accuracy.

She has taught writing at various conferences including the national conference of the American Christian Fiction Writers.

The fee for the workshop is $45, payable at the event and includes all materials and lunch. Register by calling Kim Zwegardt at (785) 332-2487. Registration is required.

Safety concern at corn harvest

As farmers from across the state harvest corn and sorghum fields this season, the Kansas Corn Commission wants producers to be safe. A video from the National Corn Growers Association and the National Grain and Feed Foundation is helping make a statement about farm safety around grain bins.

The Corn Commission encourages grain producers to take a moment to watch the video at Nega.com/videos/?vid=EaZISGZol.A&acid as an important reminder about grain bin safety. The two national organizations teamed up to develop the video in response to an increase in U.S. fatalities and injuries associated with entry into grain bins.

"Protect yourself and your family," Corn Commission Chairman Mike Brzon, a farmer from Courtland, said. "Entrapment can mean death. Don't enter a grain bin alone for one thing but if you must, take necessary precautions. We can all do better to create an ethic and attitude of safety. We can't afford to disregard it for a second."

The video, shot on location in several states, provides a wide range of information from prevention tips and background data on grain bin accidents. The project also features interviews with professionals in the fields of grain bin safety research and rescue to provide as much information to viewers as possible.

In November, the Wichita Eagle reported grain suffocation deaths in the U.S. reached an all-time high of 26 fatalities last year. Statistics show 92 percent of victims who become fully engulfed, which can happen in a matter of seconds, do not survive. According to research and extension statistics, more than 200 farmers have died as a result of grain bin suffocation accidents over the past three decades.

Here are a few recommendations for farm owners and employees during this busy season.

- Break up crusted grain from the outside of the bin with a long pole. When using a pole, make sure that it doesn't come into contact with electric lines.

- Stay near the outer wall of the bin and keep walking if the grain should start to flow. Get to the bin ladder or safety rope as quickly as possible.

- Grain fines and dust may cause difficulty in breathing. Anyone working in a grain bin, especially for the purpose of cleaning the bin, should wear an appropriate dust filter or filter respirator.

- Stay out of grain bins, wagons and grain trucks when unloading equipment is running.

- If it is necessary to enter the bin, remember to shut off the power to augers and fans. It is a good idea to lock out any unloading equipment before you enter a bin to prevent someone from unintentionally starting the equipment while you are in the bin.

- Where possible, ladders should be installed inside grain bins leading to an emergency exit. Ladders are easier to locate inside a dusty bin if there are brightly painted strips just above or behind the ladder.

Trail ride to go on north of St. Francis

By Karen Krien

Sunday's weather is supposed to be in the 70s - not too hot and not too cold - for the 22nd Cheyenne County Trail Ride. The ride has been set for 2 p.m. sharp at Douthit 4-V Herefords, north of St. Francis.

To get to the Douthit's from St. Francis, go north on Benton Street, proceeding north 3 miles (to transformers) following the curve to the right, then proceed north 5 miles on Rd. 15 (Parks Road) to Road W where there is a sign posted "Douthit 4-V Herefords." Turn east onto Rd. W and go 1 mile to Road 16. Turn north onto Rd. 16 and go 3/4 mile to the farmstead. Follow the orange cones through the yard to the east pasture for parking.

The ride is always planned for the second weekend in October. It is generally a little cooler and the trees are turning colors.

Gary Cooper, one of the coordinators, said this will be a ride will be something anyone who rides a horse will be able to enjoy. However, it will not be a ride for wagons.

Following the ride, the Cheyenne County 4-H'ers involved in the horse program will be hosting a barbecue.

Cooper has been coordinating the annual ride for the last 22 years. Another coordinator, Sharon Olofson, has been helping with the ride for 21 years.

Olofson is also responsible for raising money to help St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. She will be accepting donations for the hospital after the ride.

For more information, contact Gary Cooper, 785-332-2904, Olofson, 785-332-2248, Frank Tracy, 308-423-2646 or Jeter Isely, 785-734-2380.
