Harlem Ambassadors to play here

The Goodland Lions Club will be bringing the internationally renowned Harlem Ambassadors basketball team to town at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, March 6, at the Max Jones Fieldhouse.

The Ambassadors offer a unique brand of Harlemstyle basketball, feature high-flying slam dunks, ballhandling tricks and comedy routines. They also deliver a positive message for kids.

'At our shows, we want the kids to know that they're part of our team too," said Coach Lade Majic. "We invite as many kids as we can to come sit on the bench, have a front-row seat during the show and get involved in all of the fun stuff we do.'

The team works with local non-profit and service organizations, in this case the Goodland Lions Club, holding their shows as fundraising events. The Ambassadors work with organizations like Habitat For Humanity, Big Brothers Big Sisters and the American Red Cross on more than 200 shows every year, helping to raise millions of dollars.

"It feels good to be able to provide quality entertainment and create memories that the fans will take with them," said Ambassadors President Dale Moss.

The Ambassadors played in Burlington last year and Colby the year before. At each show, the team plays against a group of local volunteer athletes.

Congressman plans Atwood town hall

U.S. Rep. Tim Huelskamp will hold a "town hall" meeting from 9 to 10 a.m. (Mountain Time) Monday at the Rawlins County Courthouse in Atwood, part of his second week of county meetings for the year.

Rep. Huelskamp conducted four town hall meetings during the first work week of January. On completing the meetings next week, he will have held 150 since taking office in 2011.

We had tremendous turnout at the first four town halls of the year - more than 200 folks combined - and I expect that we will hear from many more Kansans at these upcoming events as well," Huelskamp said "There is a lot of concern about the direction of Washington right now, and I am glad to hear from as many people as possible about where we need to be headed."

For questions, contact Huelskamp's Dodge City office at (620) 225-0172 or his Salina office at (785) 309-0572. Rep.Huelskamp represents the 1st District of Kansas. He serves on the House Small Business Veterans' Affairs committee and is a member of the Republican Study Committee.

Find the resolve to attack gun violence

Most of us made New Year's resolutions to lose weight, save money or simply not to have any resolutions. No matter which category we are in sticking to those goals takes a high personal resolve, and determination to stay in for the long haul.

When we heard about the shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary a month ago we were so overcome it was hard to contemplate anything worse.

"It would be good if I had some profound guidance to offer," wrote Robert Simpson in the Columbus, Ga., Ledger-Enquirer (Dec. 23, 2012). "I don't. Some eloquent words of faith and comfort might help. I don't have them either. The wanton killing of women diligently performing one of the most important and selfless of tasks, and the causing of innocent children to spend their last moments on earth in terror, then slaughtering them like penned-up animals-this kind of insanity leaves me with nothing profound or comforting to offer.

"So why should I write anything about the murder of six adults and 20 small children in Newtown? Because to ignore something that has caused such unspeakable grief seems, as someone has said, disloyal. To write about something else at this moment seems not worthwhile."

The shooting in Newtown, Conn., coming months after the massacre at the Aurora, Colo., theatre rocked many to the core, and cries were heard for the country to act to reduce gun violence or at least examine ways to address what was happening in our country.

President Barack Obama assigned Vice President Joe Biden to gather people on both sides and to develop some recommendations to provide action the American public was seeking. Biden got his work done early, and Wednesday, President Obama held a press conference to reveal his recommendations to Congress and signed executive orders to help where he could without having to wait for Congress to act.

The children who wrote to the President about gun violence, some of those who survived the shootings and their parents were with the President as he made his case for a military-style rapidfiring rifle ban, a ban on large ammunition magazines and the need for expanded background checks to include those guns sold at "gun shows."

President Obama said getting these items through Congress will not be easy.

"To make a real and lasting difference, Congress must act," he said. "And Congress must act soon."

In recent days we have seen the second anniversary of the shooting in Tucson, Ariz., where a man using a handgun and a large magazine killed six and wounded 14 before he was stopped when he tried to reload the gun.

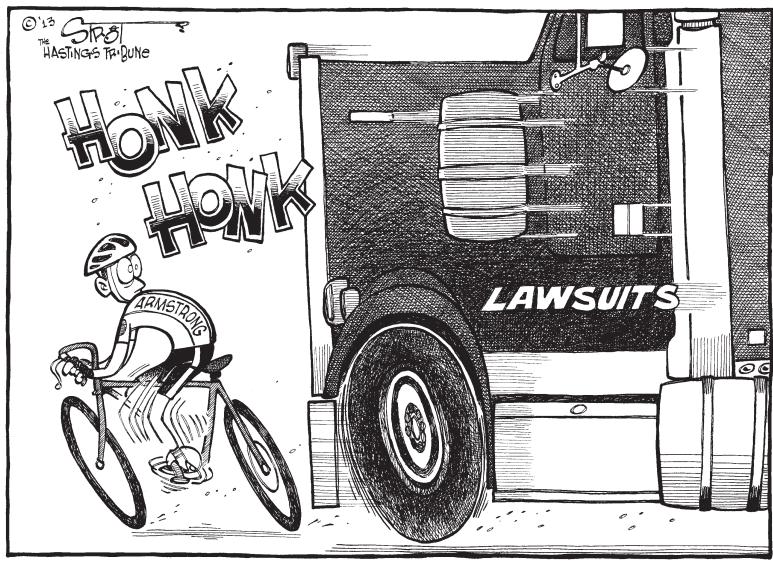

The immediate cry from the National Rifle Association is that none of the proposed laws will be passed because they will make sure Congress does not act.

We do not see these actions as trampling on the Second Amendment rights to own guns any more than the ban on machine guns passed in 1934. We know keeping pressure on legislators to act will take an higher resolve than for any other resolutions we may have made.

There are 350 million people in this country, but despite the fact nearly 60 percent of those favor the gun laws being proposed, the loud voice of the four million NRA members (.11 percent) have vowed to stop the democratic process.

As the days and months go by we hope those who favor the changes maintain their high resolve, and continue to champion reasonable ways to approach reducing the many forms of violence

First week down for Legislature

I have made it through the first week of the 2013 Legislative Session. Being a committee chair-for Education Budget-has added a lot more work and responsibility to my schedule. Monday, January 14, all of the new legislators were sworn in. It's a nice moment, but it makes me fully aware of the challenging task before me. With the political actions taking place, in mittee. To quote Mr. Anderson: "Every one of Washington D.C. and Kansas, there is a lot of discontent for the political process.

Tuesday evening we listened to the Governor's State of the State Address; and then Wednesday morning, Steve Anderson, the budget director (from Oberlin), presented the facts and figures to the Appropriations Com-you on this committee will find something to dislike in this year's budget figures."

One of the concerns I have is that the governor has requested that .6 cents of the sales tax increase will stay on the books. The Legislature had promised that the tax would end. Another problem with that is several communities are hoping to have a local sales tax to fund a project of their own when it expires. The monies might also be needed to fund critical programs. We will just have to wait and see how it all plays

If you remember from my early articles in the past, what happens early in the session is never what happens come May. I am very excited about a news conference I was in this week with the House Speaker, Ray Merrick. He made the comment that he and the President of the Senate, Susan Wagle, have a goal of finishing the legislative work in eighty days. That would make for an aggressive session, and it would save the state money.

A tribute to a great teacher

To the Editor:

For the last fourteen years, Diana Spinney has been teaching at the Kit Carson Correctional Center. She originally started at the Adult Basic Education 1 level. But eventually she would settle into the GED level. It was a good match. Over these past fourteen years she has assisted students/offenders to reach their goal to achieve a GED. Over this span, she has been a part of nearly 800 GEDs. In my book, that is an amazing accomplishment. I'm sure really want to achieve it, they will!" others have done better, but that is something to be proud of. Ms. Spinney would guffaw at the accomplishment, but I thought that this good news should be shared. Attimes, Ms. Spinney didn't know if she was going to continue at the facility, but I believe she felt, at this point in her life, that it was her calling. Her family wasn't all that excited about her teaching at a prison facility, but by looking at the results, she was right on.

well, your therapy goes quickly and you can start writing the book you always mention about your experiences at the prison. But please, don't mention my practical jokes, or the number of times we ate at fast-food restaurants, we'd both be in trouble with our spouses.

Recently, Ms. Spinney had knee replacement surgery. The time walking on the facility's concrete floors caught up with her. After her recovery, she will retire from the Kit Carson Correctional Center.

It has been a privilege to teach and work with her. It has been a privilege to see a difference that she has made in students who didn't believe they could achieve a GED. It has been a privilege to commute on I-70 for who-knows how many miles we've ridden and driven. So, Ms. Spinney, I hope your surgery went

You can sit at the table and watch the sun set a little later each day. It's such a relief after the hypershort days of late December.

It's not much yet. Just 10 minutes since the shortest day of the year, Dec. 21, known as the winter solstice. But it's something.

daylight here then. The sun rose at 8:01 a.m. and set at 5:24. Last Monday, it rose at 8:04 and set at 5:37. That's not a lot of progress.

But gaining a minute or more a day, in a couple of short months, we'll be back to even at the spring equinox, March 20. After that, the days just keep getting longer until June.

In the summer months, after the solstice June 21, we may notice the long evenings slipping up year around, sometimes for commercial away, but we'll ignore it until September, when the autumnal equinox sneaks up on us Sept. 23.

People, most of us anyway, prefer light to dark. Scientists says there's an increase in depression in the dark months, something called seasonal affective disorder, brought on by, well, darkness.

If you have only 91/2 hours of daylight, then you have 14 1/2 hours of darkness. Five hours more dark than day. It gets to people around

We only get about 9 hours, 23 minutes of the holidays. And that may be one reason why we're so fond of stringing holiday lights everywhere in November and, especially in the last few years, leaving them up later and later. Why people started putting up orange Halloween lights in October and why you see more and more red and white lights in January and February.

> Heck, some places leave Christmas lights purposes, like decorations at a restaurant. And sometimes just because.

> While we haven't stooped to Halloween lights at our place - there's enough paganism to go around these days-I'm under the impression we'll have Valentine's Day lights out by the time you read this. They've got to brighten up the long January nights.

where to write

steve haynes

It's still more than two months to the equinox, and the gains from day to day seem painfully slow. Yet, you know they are gains. and it makes a lot of people feel better about the season.

Two more months of winter, oh yeah, but we'll survive. Especially when it's getting lighter out there every day. We pretty much always survive these dark times, but a few little lights can't hurt much, can they?

And while the religious status of St. Valentine has been called into question in recent years, his day doesn't have the devilish connotations which have grown up around Halloween, or the eve of All Saints' Day. It's interesting how a Christian holiday morphed into something altogether different, but to me anyway, the witches and goblins are fantasy and little more. Delightful for kids, fun for adults and mostly harmless.

That's not saying we might not have Halloween lights up some day. Cynthia does like lights, but she has enough trouble right now getting ready for Christmas without decorating the bushes a month earlier.

Maybe they will honor them with a free meal. Plus, I can't forget to mention the help of past principals, fellow instructors and prison staff and the help of respective tutors assisting the students. bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
