The Republican challenger for the U.S. Senate seat made a fiery speech in front of a crowd of both diners and politically interested citizens at the Butterfly Cafe on Saturday.

Dr. Milton Wolf of Lyons is running against incumbent U.S. Sen. Pat Roberts in the Republican Primary. The Primary Election is Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Wolf said he is pro-life and supports Second Amendment rights. He and his family are lifelong National Rifle Association members. He advocates for the repeal and replacement for 47 years," Wolf said.

of the Affordable Care Act as well as an end to the Internal Revenue Service, saying the federal agency has become corrupt. He had harsh words for other federal agencies as well.

"The biggest threat to our farmers is a government inspector with a clip board," he said. "During the shutdown the EPA sent home 93 percent of its employees. I think they should have stayed home and gone to the Wolf also advocates for term limits.

Freedom Festival coming up soon

Goodland's annual Fourth of July celebration is coming up in just three weeks.

The Freedom Festival will begin at 6 p.m. with the opening up of the carnival rides. The Kiwanis Club will have a concession stand and the Rotary Club will have watermelon. At 7 p.m. there will be live music by the Wilkens Brothers Band. Gates to the grandstands open at 8:30 p.m. and the fireworks show by Joe Diaz begins about 9:45 p.m. The Sherman County Community Service committee is always looking for donations to help put on the festival. Each year it takes about $9,500. Donations can be sent to Sherman County Community Service, Box 185, Goodland, Kan., 67735. At last report, the committee had raised $3,500. The festival is primarily funded by private donations. Proceeds from the Home-Owned Carnival wristband sales go toward carnival operations and maintenance. For information, contact Aaron

Wheat Plot Tour scheduled for tonight

By Jeanne Falk Jones

Kansas State Agronomist Mark your calendars for this evening, for the annual Kansas State Wheat Plot Tour in Sherman County at 5:30 p.m. This is going to be a special wheat plot tour because we are celebrating the retirement of Jim Shroyer. Jim has been with Kansas State for 34 years and is doing his final round of wheat plot tours before his retirement on July 3.

consulting firm in the food and agriculture industry with an office in Goodland, has announced plans to combine with California firm, Matson and Isom. Owners of both firms voted to merge operations on January 1 of next year pending Together, the firm becomes one of the nation's largest agricultural consulting and accounting practices. With a combined 375 people and almost $60 million in revenue, it will be about 60th in size among U.S. accounting firms. Jeff Wald will preside as chief executive officer and the firm will bear a new name.

'We do great work in our key focus areas, and America.'

"Matson and Isom is a great firm that also happens to be the largest local CPA firm in the incredibly important California food and ag market. Most importantly, we share this unique vision to positively impact the future of farming and food production in Both firms focus on helping producers sustain and grow their businesses in wildly fluctuating conditions-weather, commodity price volatility, land values, and economic pressures - making sure their operations are strong and thriving for the next generation. Both firms also work extensively with related businesses throughout the food-supply chain including input suppliers, processors, packagers, storage and distributors.

"Neither of our firms are interested in growth for growth's sake. What we're interested in is helping the food and ag industry through some challenging yet exciting times. We can do that a responded to moisture at different lot better together than separately," said Jim Holt, Matson and Isom's managing director.

Senator endorses candidate

Senator Ralph Ostmeyer, who represents the 40th Senate District that includes Sherman County, and endorsed Clark Shultz for Kansas Insurance Commissioner.

Ostmeyer and Rep. Travis Couture-Lovelady of Palco announced their endorsement today. Shultz, a state senator, is currently Senate Federal and State Affairs Committee vice-chairman.

Shultz served as Chair of the House Insurance Committee from 2005 to 2014. He is a licensed title insurance agent and spent a decade as a compliance auditor in the insurance industry. Shultz is a graduate of Wichita State University and received his Master of Business degree from Baker University. He and his wife Lori have six children. 'Clark Shultz is the only person in state history to serve as rules chairman under four different Speakers of the House," Ostmeyer said. "This fact exemplifies Clark's character, fairness, and leadership abilities to serve. I support Senator Shultz for Kansas Insurance Commissioner."

As the warming weather beckons outdoor enthusiasts to their favorite lake or river, Kansans should remember that they play a critical role in helping stop aquatic invaders that threaten lakes and rivers in Kansas and many other states.

Aquatic nuisance species are animals and plants not native to Kansas that can threaten lake and river ecology, harm native or desirable species and interfere with our economy. They often hitchhike on the boats and equipment used by unsuspecting people who may unknowingly transport them to a previously uninfested body of water.

"Zebra mussels, Asian carp and white perch are already established in our state," said Gov. Sam Brownback. "These and other unwanted aquatic species pose serious environmental and economic threats. not only to Kansas waters, but also those of other states.

"Unwary travelers can spread these species between states. As vice chair of the Midwestern Governors Association, I share the concerns of other governors in our region and urge everyone who visits a body of water in any state to take precautions to avoid spreading these species to other waters."

"These species don't respect political boundaries, and they occur in public and private water bodies of all sizes," said Jessica Howell, Kansas aquatic nuisance species program coordinator. "Whatever your destination, it's important to follow the local laws and regulations concerning aquatic invaders. In Kansas, go to ProtectKSWaters. org for information about nuisance species and the necessary precau-

There are three primary ways to help stop the spread of nuisance

• Clean, drain and dry boats and equipment after every visit to any lake or river (including anything that gets wet, such as tackle, swim SWaters.org. gear, footwear and the like).

• Don't move live fish between bodies of water or up streams.

• Don't dump plants or animals in the water or drainage ditches. Instead, discard unused bait on dry land or in an approved receptacle, and find a new home with a pet shop or friend for unwanted aquarium species or pets.

It is also important to prevent the introduction of new species, including aquarium pets. In 2013, three tropical fish specimens were discovered in Kansas, an arowana at Lake Shawnee, near Topeka; a pacu at Stone Lake, near Great Bend; and a tilapia at Mill Creek, upstream genesis and salvafrom Shawnee Mission Park.

None of these exotic fish likely would have survived the winter. However, in 2013 and early 2014, two new populations of Chinese and Japanese mystery snails were reported in Kansas – both of which now have reproducing populations in several Kansas waters. These snails are popular with aquarium and water-garden enthusiasts.

About Asian carp, zebra mussels and white perch

Asian carp – actually three species of carp - threaten waterways and fish populations. They can eat up to 40 percent of their body weight each day, competing with native fish for food and threatening the diversity and quality of other aquatic life.

Zebra mussels are dime-sized, shelled animals that attach themselves to anything below the water line. In addition to damaging boating and fishing equipment, they'll foul rocky shorelines with their sharp shells, making it hard to walk or wade along the shore. White perch, native to the Atlantic coast, were accidentally introduced into Wilson and Cheney reservoirs as contaminants in shipments of stocked fish. Since then, they have been spread to other reservoirs by unwary people.

low healthy are the trees in your yard? One of the most important clues in determining the health of your tree is the amount of new growth that the tree produces. Ahealthy tree should have a minimum of four to six inches of new growth each year. Check branches with the tips in the open and not shaded by the tree itself. Anything less than four inches on the majority of its branches suggests the tree is under a great deal of stress.

So, how do you tell where the new growth stops?

Look for a color change in the stem. New growth is often greener than that from the previous year. There is also often an area of what looks like compressed growth where growth transitions from one year to the next.

Lastly, look at leaf attachment!

Leaves are only produced on current seasons' growth. Therefore, new growth stops where leaves are no longer attached directly to the twig but to side branches. However, pay attention as leaves may appear to be attached directly to last year's ally borne on short spurs. If you look closely, you can tell the difference.

All these clues tell you are whether a tree is under stress or not. It does not tell you what is causing poor growth. The most common cause by far is environmental stress caused by the warm, dry winters and hot, dry and windy spring and

Stress is cumulative. In other words, trees may not have completely recovered from stressful conditions that occurred several growth but are actu- years ago. The accumulating stress may have damaged root systems. In some cases, root systems were damaged enough that those trees may struggle as we enter summer. Though the roots were able to keep up with moisture demands during the cooler spring weather, they may not be able to as temperatures rise. Such trees may suddenly collapse and die or slough off branches they can no longer support. If possible, water to a depth of 12 inches every couple of weeks if we do not receive rain in order to avoid further stress.

from our viewpoint...

Era of interference should be ended

Reinvade, reoccupy, and re-destroy Iraq. That is the solution to the inevitable civil war that happens when the U.S. pulls out? Will we do it until either Iraq is remade in our image or until the U.S. economy, political environment, and culture is also destroyed?

Eight years ago a group of Portland peace activists raised the funds to bring together a number of experts to produce an exit strategy from Iraq. Ours was done, as it turns out, at the same time that the Iraq Study Group did their work. We were just unaware that the government had finally at long last decided maybe it was time to think Exit Plan. Duh. I expect we were all simply inspired and challenged by the insightful and cogent strategy published shortly before in the widely cited peer-reviewed journal, The Onion.

Still, despite the obvious – and our group, which was informed by military experts and conflict transformation experts alike, noted well that no matter when the US left the Iraqis would have a bloody civil war and settle on a new autocratic government that shot its way to power and repressed its citizenry – it took the US three more years to begin to leave, longer to finish leaving, and now the correctly predicted violent settling-out process is happening in earnest.

Naturally, the US conflict industry is dismayed when the US isn't spending every last centavo on weaponry and other military profiteering contracts. Time to respond! Go bomb! Send in "advisers." No-fly attacks, hunt down insurgents with drones and war jets. Remobilize US troops because if there is one glaringly blatant truth, proxy troops no longer work in this post-Cold War era. They seemed to be Just Fine and a great way to drain the American taxpayer when their loyalty was fairly dependable.

Our supported administrations are now routinely driven from power by the ballot, the bullet, or the bodies--that is, by the elections we no longer control, by violent insurgencies, or by civil society nonviolent revolution.

Stop it. Stop interfering in other countries. Stop sending arms. Stop the drones. Just support civil society with helpful and requested aid, never guns or tanks or war jets or anti-insurgent helicopters or anti-government rocket-propelled grenade launch $ers. And for any chance of success, keep \, U.S. \, troops \, at \, home. \, Let$ Iraqis work it through and then try to be a friend to their citizenry with our goods of life. It may not be as fast as the "I've got a gun to your head so go vote!" model of spreading "democracy" that is favored by our leaders and our military industrial congressional complex, but it is the only one that actually works. Can we please start now?

Letters of thanks

To the Editor:

I have the distinct privilege to work with some exceptional individuals, both youth and adults, who are ever so grateful to the community your newspaper reaches. It is my hope that I can express our thanks to the community for hosting two AFS exchanges students.

Host families, teachers, coaches, church members, and many others are to thank for the success of Paulina's and Tove's experiences. Thank you also to the High Plains Museum for sharing our AFS story in its recent exhibit. The community is a trove in an unassuming package perfectly sized to enter the hearts and minds of the youth of the world. Thank you for taking the time to show the world who we are.

These international high school students attended Goodland High School, lived with host families and discovered what Goodland Dear Goodland community: is all about. The students are now preparing to take Goodland back to Sweden and Germany. Before their return to their home countries, they have left words of thanks.

AFS-USA is always looking for supportive host families. Over the past decades the community has created more than 100 global connections through AFS. By hosting an AFS Exchange Student, Goodland helps build bridges of intercultural understanding at home and abroad while connecting with outstanding

Dear Goodland community:

My name is Tove Vernberg and I was an exchange student from Sweden. I had an amazing year in Goodland, Kansas, and there are so many people I want to thank for that.

First of all, I want to thank Goodland High School for letting me attend their school this year. Then I would like to thank the AFS club in the high school for letting me be a part of their club. I would also like to thank my liaison, Jeanne Irvin, for always being there for me and helping me through this year.

And most of all I would like to thank my host family, Bryce, Jessica, Grace, Eve, and Henry Cole. It has been amazing living with you and I couldn't have asked for a better host family.

And another very important group I would like to thank is all my friends. My year would have been completely different (in a bad way) without you!

I could not have gotten to a better place than Thank you to the First Baptist Church of Goodland, and I will for sure be back sooner

A sunny trip to Maine

Friday afternoon, we packed up and left Portland after 5 1/2 days is gorgeous, mostly sunny, Maine.

To give us more time to work before we left, we'd decided to fly east, but we'd take the time to ride trains all the way home, or at least, to McCook. We got a ride to Denver and left at car at the depot in McCook. Free parking beats paying $9 a day at the airport, plus if you're lucky, you can park right where you'll step off the train.

The first leg was just 2 1/2 hours on the Downeaster, the state-supported train service between Boston and Portland. The ride was smooth, losing just a few minutes to places where the track was being worked on, and we were in Boston by 6. After checking in to a small hotel in the Back Bay area, we decided to stroll around the area, with blocks and blocks of apartments. Singles, couples, families wandered around, nice people enjoying their city.

The main street offered at least a dozen little restaurants, everything from mom-and-pop pizza places to posh dinner clubs, and lots in between. We chose one that offered chefupdated comfort food. Cynthia's "pork and beans," for instance, had pulled pork, ribs, a meatball and a sausage, all delicious, but nothing like what we think of as "pork and beans." It was enough for lunch for two the next day.

Come morning, we had a train to catch, Amtrak's Acela to Washington. It's what passes for high-speed rail in the U.S., though it tops out at 130 mph compared to over 200 in France. Seats are wide and comfortable, coach seats almost like first class on an airliner.

We have to be at the depot by 8, and we have to get out of Back Bay before the start of the big Gay Pride parade at 10. City crews are towing cars and someone is raising a rainbow-colored ballon arch over the starting point.

The Acela is smooth and comfortable, and we get breakfast sandwiches from the snack bar, then settle in for some sightseeing. The Connecticut coast is too foggy to see much, but there are a lot of boats. Lots and lots of boats. Occasionally we get a glimpse of some scenery, but the sun won't come out until we're farther south.

along the sappa

Views of New York are spectacular as the train climbs up and over the Hell Gate Bridge and works its way downtown to Penn Station. More views back to Manhattan after we climb out of the tunnels, then the train winds up to 130 southbound. We pass through Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, then glide into Washington, where we change trains.

This is one time I'm more than glad we're not at an airport. We're overloaded, but a "red cap," or baggage porter, takes us, bags and all, around to the next platform, where we can board our car for Chicago. Whole thing takes five to 10 minutes, and we don't even go into the depot.

I'd forgotten how green and lush and rugged the Potomac valley is. We pass miles of history, alongside the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal of 1850, the nation's original artery of commerce between the coast and the "northwest territories," what we think of as the old Midwest. The canal tied rivers and seacoast together in a day when commerce moved mostly by water.

Then we're at Harper's Ferry, where John

Brown of Kansas seized the government armory in 1859, hoping to take the rifles stored there and arm a slave rebellion in the South. The government set an army colonel, Robert E. Lee, to put down the rebellion.

Brown was hanged, and the war had to wait a couple of years.

Soon, our train is into the teeth of a grade nearly as tough as any in Colorado or the Sierras. Then we top out and drift down to the birthplace of the Ohio, Pittsburg, which calls at midnight.

We sleep across Ohio, wake up in Indiana. where we find the train losing time amidst a fleet of freights. We're into Chicago an hour late, giving us four hours to walk, find a church and eat lunch. On the way back, we buy popcorn which is too good to be true, then settle into the Zephyr for McCook, via Galesburg, Ottumwa and Omaha.

We have dinner in the dinner, talking with a woman from Virginia on the way to San Francisco to see her sister. In the diner, they have to fill every table, so you never know who you'll sit with. It's almost always fun.

Iowa is beautifully green in the setting sun. then it's dark and I've time to write in the dark. After nine days, it'll be good to be in our own bed, the cats should be happy to have us back and there'll be a paper to do.

growing stages.

Also included in the program is Lucas Haag, new Kansas State northwest area agronomist. Lucas will be talking about harvesting short and thin wheat. Lucas grew up on a farm northwest of Oberlin and is very familiar with all types of headers, including stripper headers. Harvesting short and thin wheat seemed like a fitting topic after seeing so much of it in the area.

Also in the plots this year, there is one variety, Judee, that is not familiar to the area. This is because it is solid stemmed wheat. It was decided to try this variety out under northwest Kansas conditions because it is one method for dealing with the wheat stem sawfly. The wheat stem sawfly is a pest moving slowly toward northwest Kansas. This insect girdles the stem of the wheat plant, causing it to lodge or lay down just prior to harvest. The solid stem wheat has a thicker stem, making it too hard for the sawfly to lay its eggs in the stem. These varieties are adapted for the Montana and Wyoming area, so it was thought that it was important to see how they do in our conditions.

Finally, Erick DeWolf, Kansas State wheat disease specialist, will be discussing the importance of selecting varieties with resistance to wheat diseases. Even though this year there was not high wheat disease pressure, it is important to keep resistant varieties in your wheat portfolio.

As you can tell, this is quite the lineup of topics for our wheat plot tour. Following the tour, a hamburger fry will be served at the 4-H Building. It is provided by First National Bank and is served by Ruleton Eager Beavers 4-H Club.

The wheat plot cooperators are F&JFarms and the plot is located ten miles north of Goodland, north of the trees. Please feel free to stop and look at the plot both before and after the tour. If you have any questions, please contact the Kansas State Extension Office at (785) 890-4880. K-State researching sheep as weed control could become a scenario for profit, but it would require beef and sheep producers to work together to sustainably manage a noxious weed problem plaguing the area.

KC Olson, a beef cattle scientist for Kansas State Research and Extension, said sericea lespedeza is on the short list of noxious weed species people have thrown up their hands over, particularly those who own land in the Flint Hills. In the past, it has taken costly herbicide application to get rid of the weed.

Sericea is a tannin-rich perennial legume, and cattle grazing in the Flint Hills aren't lining up to eat it, Olson said. His latest research that examines ways to control sericea in Kansas grasslands involves two cost-effective grazing approaches: supplementing grazing cows with a corn steep liquor byproduct to prompt them to eat sericea and using sheep as "clean up" grazers on sericea once stocker cattle are removed from pastures mid-summer.

Olson said both of these methods have worked to combat the spread of sericea, although he is in the initial stages of the research. The aim is to develop additional tools for the landowner's toolbox to help deal with this problem in cheaper ways.

A costly nuisance

Sericea lespedeza is a durable weed that costs a lot of money to get rid of with herbicide, Olson said. Sericea has been labeled a noxious weed in Kansas the last 15 to 20 years, but landowners today are no closer to making it disappear.

If a person applies chemical to it immediately, it's possible to make it go away for a short time, he said. But, sericea is a durable plant and is allelopathic, meaning as it grows it produces chemicals in the soil that prevent the germination and growth of native plants. It's also canopy-

A costly situation in the Kansas Flint Hills dominant, meaning it can shade out its plant comliquid feed handling system to use it. petitors and take over a field. Landowners usually don't notice sericea until it is out of control.

The amount of seed sericea produces is another major problem, he said. One adult plant can produce massive amounts of seed, and that seed has respectable durability in the soil. Even seed that has been in the soil for several years has potential to germinate.

Supplementation for cows

Olson has been studying ways to prevent sericea lespedeza from taking over fields in the Flint Hills since 2008. To cut down on costs, he has aimed to provide more grazing pressure on

When a plant has been grazed, the rules of nature dictate that the plant directs its nutritional resources away from seed production and toward restoration of leaf area," Olson said. "That would be a small way we could cut into the reproductive capacity of that plant and get some control

Most of the Flint Hills' beef stocker producers use short-season grazing where they double the stocking rate for half of the grazing season, he said. The stocker cattle begin grazing in late April to early May and are gone by mid to late-July.

Olson has used supplementation of corn steep liquor, a byproduct of wet corn milling, with sericea to make it more palatable to cows that graze after the stocker cattle leave. Corn steep liquor is inexpensive and reasonably rich in protein and a compound called proline. Those two things can make animals more tolerant of high-tannin diets.

In several experiments, Olson found that this method of supplementation increased voluntary consumption of sericea lespedeza. He said downside of this method is that corn steep liquor is not available at every feed store, and it is a high-moisture product. A person must have a

The sheep method

Although sericea is not appreciated in eastern and central parts of Kansas, Olson said, in the western part of the state there is a fairly robust sheep industry. Most producers in western areas are constantly looking for available grazeable forage during the late summer months.

This begged the question if mature ewes could be used in the Flint Hills to custom graze during that late season interval and help control sericea lespedeza. Kansas State's Bressner Pasture in Yates Center consists of eight, 80-acre pastures that are routinely stocked with steers from April to July. Last year when the stocker steers left, Olson grazed ewes on half of those pastures for 60 days, from August to the beginning of October.

Olson said three key forb species were monitored in this study, including sericea lespedeza, ironweed and western ragweed. The grazing was strictly voluntary - no supplementation was used.

"In two separate analyses during that 60-day period, between 85 and 95 percent of the sericea plants we observed showed evidence of grazing," he said. "Not only that, but the sheep also went after the ironweed in a very big way and defoliated essentially 100 percent of the ironweed plants in those treated pastures."

After the sheep grazed the ironweed and sericea, they turned their eyes toward the western ragweed, Olson said, and cleaned up about half of that during the 60-day interval.

More information about the history, characteristics and identification of sericea lespedeza is included in a publication (www.ksre.ksu.edu/ bookstore/pubs/mf2408.pdf) through Kansas State Research and Extension.

University engineers design systems for kids

A group of Kansas State University engineers and students is developing technology to improve the health and quality of life for children with severe developmental

Steven Warren, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering, and Punit Prakash, assistant professor of electrical and computer engineering, are collaborating with Heartspring Inc. The Wichita-based nonprofit organization is a therapeutic residential and day school program that uses evidence-based and emerging best practices to serve students who often have multiple diagnoses, including autism spectrum disorders, cerebral palsy, speech and language impairments, and other developmental disabilities.

The collaborative work is supported by a five-year $125,000 grant children's lives."

from the National Science Foundation's General and Age-Related 2011. Nearly 30 professors and Disabilities Engineering program.

The professors are using the grant to teach senior design courses where engineering students develop customized devices and software to help children at Heartspring. The er engineering; mechanical and professors and students collaborate nuclear engineering; biological clinicians and paraeducators to un- industrial engineering. derstand the needs of these children. Most of the children have a primary diagnosis of autism and a majority are nonverbal.

"The intent of this program is to pursue a specific design for a specific child when possible," Warren said. "When we are finished with a design. This is research where you students took part on design teams during the 2013-2014 academic year. The courses have involved several engineering departments, including electrical and computwith Heartspring administrators, and agricultural engineering; and

In some of these courses, students learn about bioinstrumentation and how to develop sensors and hardware to measure physiological signals.

"It's often the students' first exposure to an open-ended design problem," Prakash said. "They identify design, that individual would then a specific problem and propose how get to keep and use a copy of the they can address that. It's a realworld problem, similar to the kind can add immediate benefit to these they will work on throughout their professional careers."

Some of the student-developed projects so far have included:

- Smartphone tools and apps to help paraeducators track and record children's behavioral, physiological and cognitive development.
- Wearable sensors, such as accelerometers, that can be placed in shoes or clothing to monitor self-abusive behaviors. The engineers are working with Minyoung Suh, assistant professor of apparel, textiles, and interior design, to develop wearable sensors embedded in clothing.
- A musical toothbrush that tracks brushing activity and plays different songs so children know how long to brush the different areas of their
- Multi-touch surface computer games that teach children how to sort items, take turns and interact with other children.

• An adjustable stand for these multi-touch surface computers.

- Mattress and bed sensors that track breathing rates, heart rates and movement of children while they are sleeping and potentially can alert para educators of seizures and bedwetting.
- Shoe sensors to quantify the progress of children learning to

Warren and Prakash are continuing the design courses every semester while the grant is active. When possible, the professors take students to Heartspring so they can tour the facility and better understand the usage environments.

Heartspring leaders continue to see the project's potential to make a difference in the lives of the children with special needs.

"All too often clinicians and teachers don't know what is possible and engineers don't know what is needed," said Gary Singleton, president and chief executive officer of Heartspring. "When the two come together, there is an opportunity to encourage interdisciplinary collaboration and to imagine new solutions to real-world problems."

Other university collaborators include Stephen Dyer, professor of electrical and computer engineering; Kim Fowler, instructor of electrical and computer engineering; Bala Natarajan, professor of electrical and computer engineering; Edwin Brokesh, instructor of biological and agricultural engineering; Garth Thompson, professor of mechanical and nuclear engineering; and Jack Xin, associate professor of mechanical and nuclear and Under baseball team ended their regular season on June 10 with an undefeated record.

12 and Under team is undefeated, begins tournament play

The Rough Riders are scheduled to compete in tournament play today at 8:30 a.m. in Burlington. The winner of that game will go on to play in the championship game at 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

In their final regular season game, the Rough Riders beat the Burlington-Richardson Construction team 13-1 on the road.

After a leadoff single from Colton McCarty, Goodland got five runs on five more base hits. The Rough Riders added seven more runs in the top of the third on a double by Mc-Carty and singles by Mason Neal, Andrew Schields, Jake DeLaRosa and Trevor Daise and two singles from Brock Mull and Bryson Ihrig.

The Burlington team scored their only run in the bottom of the third, while Goodland added one more in the fourth on a home run by Mc-Carty to win 13-1.

In their first game on May 14, the Rough Riders beat Stratton 13-4.

The team gave up one run on one hit in the first, but in the bottom of the inning, Schields scored, tying the game 1-1.

Leyton Cure broke the tie in the second inning, scoring on a fielder's choice. The Rough Riders extended their lead to 4-1 in the third with two runs on singles from DeLaRosa and Trevor Daise and a double from Stratton put in two runs in the top of the fourth, but the Rough Riders scored another run in the bottom of the fourth and four runs in the bottom half of the fifth on six hits including a double from Henry Cole.

The Rough Riders held Stratton to just one more run in the game while scoring four more to win 13-4.

Against the Limon-Black, the Rough Riders got out to an early 1-0 lead in the first, but lost the lead when Limon scored two runs in the second. They tied the game 2-2 in the third with a run from Mason Neal on a single from Jack Daise.

The Rough Riders retook the lead 3-2 in the top of the fourth on a solo home run from McCarty. Limon pulled ahead again in the bottom of the fourth, taking a 4-3 lead.

taps in the fifth inning, scoring five that, the Rough Riders scored one runs on three hits, including home run in the second, two in the third runs from McCarty and DeLaRosa. and three in the sixth to win 8-1. Limon was unable to score again, in the sixth inning to win 14-4.

matters of record

The Goodland Rough Riders 12 in the bottom of the first inning. Burlington tied the game 1-1 with a run in the top of the second, but the Rough Riders exploded with four runs in the bottom half of the inning. Cole and Mull each hit doubles.

> Burlington added a run in the top of the third, but the Rough Riders extended their lead to 8-2 in the bottom of the inning on hits from Jack Daise and Ihrig.

> Goodland held Burlington scoreless in the fourth while adding three runs of their own on singles from Ryan Berls, Schields and Mull; a double from Ihrig, a triple from McCarty and a home run from DeLaRosa.

> Each team put up one more run in the game, which ended in the sixth inning with a 12-3 win for

> The team got a big win over Hugo, 18-2 in six innings. Two runs scored in the bottom of the first in a single from Neal and a double from Truman Hooker. Neither team scored again until the third, when Hugo put one run across on one hit.

> In the bottom half of the inning, Goodland put two runs on the board on doubles by Neal and DeLaRosa and a single by Cole.

> Hugo would score one more run in the top of the fourth, but the rest of the game was all Goodland. The Rough Riders put in four runs in the fourth and five runs each in the fifth and sixth innings to win 18-2.

The Rough Riders' biggest win of the season came against Flagler on June 2.

Goodland batted around in the first inning, nearly going through the order twice and bringing home 12 runs. Among the team's four hits was a home run for Neal.

The Rough Riders gave up one run in the bottom half of the inning, but came back with another eight runs in the second and three more in the third. In the top of the fourth, Flagler put together a three-run rally, but it was not enough to overcome Goodland, who won 23-4.

On June 7, Goodland traveled to Limon to face the Limon Grey team. The Rough Riders got things going with two runs in the first off the bats of Cole, Mull and DeLaRosa.

The Limon team would score their only run in the bottom of the The Rough Riders opened up the first on a walk and a single. After

Also on the team are Manten Cure but the Rough Riders added six runs and Trent Coon. Coaches are Harvey DeLaRosa, Kale Schields, Dal-Goodland defeated the Burling- las DeLaRosa and Mike McCarty.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
