

Fire on the prairie

Individually (above) and from trucks (below) firemen with the Norton Rural Fire Department sprayed water on burning grass to put out the flames that sprang up after a spark from a train set it alight.

Firefighters had to go across the road to continue the fight against a fire that spread underneath a bridge.

Smoke was a major factor in Tuesday's grass fire and could be seen from several miles away.

*Telegram photos
by Veronica Monier*