HANSEN MUSEUM

We are in the process this week of finishing our new exhibit, "No Guts, No Glory" of the Museum Presentation Associates Touring Exhibitions. This exhibit of fifty black and white rodeo photographs will open on July 7, and run through Sept. 24.

Sometimes life really does imitate art; at least that's been the case for Louise Serpa, an award-winning rodeo photographer. Like the cowboys who climb atop those wild creatures, she has been daring both personally and professionally.

Most notably, in 1963 Serpa became the first woman allowed to photograph inside a professional rodeo arena. She was also the first woman photographer allowed on the course of the Grand National Steeplechase in England. In 1982, the Pro Rodeo Cowboys Association recognized her for the Best Action Photo. Then in 1994, Serpa published her book "Rodeo: No Guts, No Glory", a collection of extraordinary images, some of which have hung in galleries across the country.

Most recently, she earned the Tad Lucas Memorial Award for outstanding work in the sport of rodeo, as well as inductions into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame in 2000 and the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in 2002 at the National Cowboy & Western Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City.

Showing in conjunction with these wonderful photographs will be our own Bill Foster - "Horse Gear". Bill has his own share of good and bad horse stories.

The last one being a ride taken on his 85th birthday, which left him in the hospital for 3 weeks. That outlaw went to the "killer plant". Bill will be present at our preview on Sunday to answer any questions about his "Horse Gear". Please plan to attend.
