

Drinking, driving can cause world of hurt

If you are drunk, and you drive, you lose.
That's the message in a nutshell to Kansas vehicle operators as the Labor Day weekend looms.
The Kansas Department of Transportation said this week that it will join with thousands of other law enforcement and highway safety agencies across the nation to launch an aggressive crackdown on impaired drivers. The effort is currently underway and will continue through the holiday weekend.
"Make no mistake: No matter what you drive, if you are caught driving impaired, you will be arrested," said Pete Bodyk, chief of the Kansas Department of Transportation's bureau of traffic safety.

"Law enforcement agencies throughout Kansas and the rest of the nation will be out in full force conducting sobriety checkpoints and saturation patrols to get drunk drivers off the road," said Col. William Seck of the Kansas Highway Patrol. "We want everyone to play it safe and always designate a sober driver or find a different way home if they have been out drinking."

Driving with a blood alcohol concentration of .08 or higher is illegal in every state. Although drunk driving fatalities across the nation declined slightly in 2003 and 2004 (latest years recorded), alcohol-related fatalities are projected to increase.
The FBI's Uniform Crimes Report said more than 1.4 million people were arrested for driving under the influence in 2004.
Remember: if you're impaired, and you drive, you lose.
