Learning center now open

The Norton Lions Club heard about a new learning center in Norton.

Danna Kelly, Director of 211 Learning Center, explained to the members that the center is a facility geared to helping high school drop-outs get a high school diploma. She said the learning center, which is located in the old bus barn on East Campus, allows students to work at their own pace, within their own schedule. She said students can come to the facility, itself, or work on-line at home. The center is open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Norton school superintendent Greg Mann added that the student will earn a Norton Community High School diploma, not a General Education Diploma (GED). He also said that if a drop-out from the high school goes into the alternative program, it does not count against the school's drop-out rate. The drop-out rate at the Norton high school is about five percent.

Mrs. Kelly said there are already 13 students enrolled at the center. Anyone 18 years of age, or older, can enroll to get their high school diploma. She said it is also possible to receive credits for "real life" experiences.

Mrs. Kelly said the average person to enroll at the center is between the ages of 18 and 25; generally working in a low paying job; often a single mom; and lacking from 1 1/2 credits to all four years.

For more information about the 211 Learning Center, call 785-874-4333 or write Mrs. Kelly at: dannak@essdack.org.

How to help those in need subject of group's meeting

By MARIE WENDEL
The North Dividers Family and Community Education Unit met for their monthly meeting at the Town and Country Kitchen with hostess Geneva Berry on Aug. 17.

The lesson was, "Yes, You Can Make a Difference" given by Fleta Hanlon, president. Members learned they can all make a difference in the lives of others less fortunate.

It's essential to learn the needs of people in our communities: people who are handicapped, disabled, in nursing home and in the hospital. Ways to help are: volunteering to drive a friend to the doctor, shopping for them, delivering meals on wheels, babysitting for the children of a young mother, helping a child with homework, making a habit of calling a shut-in each day to check on their well-being and offering friendship.

Socialization and friendship are the primary goals.
