

ANDBE HOME

By DARLENE McEWEN
Resident Resource Coordinator

While the Norton County Fair was in full swing, residents of the Andbe Home participated in many ways.

Hosting the Norton County Pet Show for the 4-H's continues to be an enjoyable time for residents. This annual event happens the Monday evening before fair week. This year, the dog show was first with the hand pets second and the cat show last. You read about the winners and those that participated in the events in The Telegram but if you didn't attend the pet show you have no idea the events that happened behind the scene.

Morgan Baumann exhibited a miniature Collie who has grown up with Morgan. As Beth Mustoe saw the Collie, she exclaimed, "That is just like the dog I had at home." Morgan was gracious as she brought her Collie over to be petted by Beth, Dorothy Foland and others in the crowd.

Bailey Ambrosier had the cutest little dog whose tummy drug the grass as Bailey and the dog obeyed the judge. When Bailey was finished with the judging, she brought her dog through the crowd and Eula Heikes reached out to pet the cutie. The last two waiting for the winners to be announced were resident Marjorie Drommer and her daughter Mary Ann Hager. Andbe Home staff were rounding people up to sit close to the table where the rest of the pets were to be judged but Marjorie and Mary Ann wanted to wait to see the winners — they had a bet to see who won because Marjorie had a special dog and Mary Ann had a different special dog. Mary Ann's dog was the winner but Marjorie still thought hers was the best! A ferret and a chinchilla from the Bohl 4-H family drew lots of attention. Jarred Bohl brought the chinchilla through the crowd and Betty Muehe thought it had really soft fur as she stroked it. Betty's husband, Augie, thought it was soft also. The chinchilla was inside the Andbe Home where it was cool until time for judging of the hand pets and the residents who were watching from the windows were glad to share the cool. Marisa Maddy had a tiny hamster that looked like a mouse. Marisa brought the hamster through the audience and Evelyn Lyon looked up with this surprised look and said, "Never thought I would think something that looked this close to a mouse would be cute, honey!" Shirley Sproul was here to watch the show with her mother, Twila Henry. Leland Dwinell came especially for the cat show. It was so interesting when Dr. Sara White examined the cats and then had the 4-Hers tell something about the cat.

Wava Hickert, Geneva DeYoung and Lola Brack were among the last to leave. The Vanover 4-H family of young men and their mom, Kari, helped put the front patio back in shape and within thirty minutes you could not tell anything so special had happened at the Andbe Home in Norton, Kansas.

The next fair outing was to see the 4-H Style Show on Saturday evening. Four residents accompanied by Darlene McEwen and Rose Ann Miller were anticipating a great time as we pulled into the 4-H building parking lot. Koby McEwen, grandson of Darlene, went with the group. He was given the job of running the van lift up and down. He was pretty serious about his part of the outing, as Grandma had given specific instructions on how important it was. Eula Heikes smiled after knowing Grandma was giving the strict instructions and said to Koby, "Down please!" John Ruder, a daddy of one of the 4-Hers came by and unloaded the wheelchairs from the van and Patsy Maddy, a mommie of a 4-Her was on hand to help push residents in. Megan Wentz, all dressed up in her outfit to model, sighted her old neighbor, Evelyn Lyon, and came right over to welcome her. "Now watch for me," Megan said.

Evelyn not only watched for Megan but also her sister, Rebecca. Wava Hickert commented on the nice visit she had with Beverly Kindler. All too soon, it was time to load up and come home. On the way out, Lola Brack said, "Wasn't this a wonderful evening?" Grandson Koby heard the loving way she said it and said, "Yeh, my grandma does wonderful things!" I decided to let Koby think 'I' do wonderful things but 'I' want everyone else to know it is Norton that does wonderful things!

Tuesday evening was the ride to the fair grounds just to see the home-owned carnival. Edna Paden, Wanda Mechsner, Esther Wharton, Dorothy Foland, Della Connell joined Activity Director, Dawn Risewick, and Medical Record's Clerk, Becky Hopson, for a ride through the park where they explored the Horse Equine Area. The residents were disappointed that the ribbon placements were not more visible. They ventured over to the carnival area where the screams from the roller coaster were heard and the round and round sounds of the kid's ride.

Dawn Risewick called her husband, Rich, who brought two bags of cotton candy to the van. It was devoured in just a few minutes! What is going to the carnival without tasting cotton candy?

They journeyed out on KQNK Road before returning home and were interested in the various crops they could see. A trip by Richard Rule's goat farm brought comments about how many goats were there! Wanda Mechsner was an excellent tour guide for the group because she knew the owners of the homes along, not only KQNK Road, but also along the whole route home.

Anticipation was high as Wednesday morning, the residents who participated in the Garden Club had to decide which flowers to enter in the horticulture division of the Open Class Division. Velma Knapp gathered geranium blooms, single petunias and double petunias from the planter boxes on the front patio. Edna Paden helped harvest a cockscomb plume and Lola Brack was interested in what made a good zinnia. The Garden Club residents were disappointed in the roses and shasta daisies that they had to pick from. None were up to par as roses and daisies go, but they decided to send them anyway! Of course, they are the best African violet growers around. They had one that was picture-perfect until Velma and Darlene started to load it for the fair and broke one leaf off. It was still really pretty so we took it anyway. When Vi Meier, Wava Hickert, Edna Paden and Velva McClain went Wednesday afternoon to view the entries, they all were excited to pick out the eight entries and even more excited when all eight had ribbons! It just didn't seem that the day could have been any better until we drove down by the 4-H barn and there were the Harting boys washing their big steers and a couple of bucket calves were being fed by their owners. They all waved as we drove slowly through seeing all that we could see.

Through the years, the Norton County Fair has etched many memories. When you are a nursing home resident, they become even sweeter if you get the chance to relive them and your hometown people make them so special.
