Club members show off their tasty cooking skills

4-H Members were busy cooking up dishes and designing place settings and leaders and parents were giving plenty of help for the Annual 4-H Favorite Food Show, Jan. 16. Judges consulted with 25 4-H'ers about meal preparation techniques and nutritional value of favorite foods, how the favorite food fits into a menu and the food guide pyramid and the presentation of the food in a table setting. The judges were Lynette Brown from Alma, Neb., Anna Schremmer from Phillipsburg and Susan Schlichting from Hays.

The 4-H'ers selected table linens, place settings and centerpieces for their displays to represent a table setting for a meal or snack where their "favorite food" entree or dish would be served. Judges met with each 4-H'er to evaluate the table setting, the food product and nutritional information, and food safety issues about the entree or dish they prepared.

Four outstanding ratings were given, one in each of the Foods and Nutrition Levels.

Level I: Addison Brooks, Busy Beaver 1-H Club, Chocolate Surprise Cookies.

Level II: Micah Kasson, Cedar Ridge 4-H Club, Chicken Stir Fry.

Level III: Macy Kasson, Cedar Ridge 4-H Club, Swedish Meatballs.

Level IV: Carissa Wentz, Prairie Dog 4-H Club, Peach Raspberry Streusel Tart.

Cleanup

March. Smith said that the basement still needs cleaning.

"There's a lot of stuff in that basement," she said. "I don't know if any of it has any use. We'll find out."

The two foremen brought equipment bids for the commissioners to study.

Richard had three bids on dump trucks. The commissioners asked him to check a couple of other places before they made a decision.

No one wants the county's old dump trucks, he said, but they can probably be sold locally.

"We've always got farmers around here who always want trailers," he said.

Pfannenstiel had bids for a new forklift.

The commissioners decided that they wanted the most stable, open cab model they could buy since the machine will probably last 20 years.

They asked Pfannenstiel to get a little more information about the two that he had bids for and they will probably make their decision on which to get next week.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Heard that things went well for the Road and Bridge Department on Monday, the first snow day, but when the temperatures plummeted on Tuesday, several pieces of equipment just didn't want to get started.
- OKed Smith attending a half-day workshop put on by the Kansas Department of Transportation on right of ways.

- Learned that the county is almost ready to put its old D5 dozer out for bids. A picture of the machine is still needed so buyers can see what it looks like.

- Told the road and bridge foremen that they had heard mostly good things about the snow removal last week.
