

Campaign for seatbelts

Law enforcement agencies across Kansas will participate in an aggressive campaign in and around schools to both educate and enforce seatbelt laws, Feb. 27 - March 12. This is part of a program called Seatbelts Are For Everyone, which is designed to promote and reward seatbelt use among teens, while encouraging officers to strictly enforce the seatbelt law.

In 2009, nearly 24,000 teens were involved in car crashes in Kansas. Forty-five teens died as a result of those crashes, and of those, 34 or 75 percent were not wearing seatbelts. In an effort to change this trend, students from more than 100 high schools in 30 counties across Kansas are now participating in Seatbelts Are For Everyone.

Two years ago, the first Seatbelts are for Everyone program was implemented in Crawford County. The results have been outstanding, with Crawford County now seeing one of the highest seatbelt usage rates among its teens. Even more importantly, the county had 10 rollover crashes involving teens last year, and in nine of those crashes all occupants were buckled up, resulting in minor or no injuries.

Seatbelts have been proven to save lives and prevent serious injuries. Drivers should make sure everyone in the vehicle is buckled before starting the engine. Law enforcement officers are reminding everyone to buckle up, every trip, every time. In Kansas, it's the law.
