

August is the month for checking immunizations

In its work to help Kansans protect themselves from serious diseases, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment is proudly participating in National Immunization Awareness Month.

Immunizations can prevent infectious diseases like chickenpox, whooping cough and meningitis. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, each year immunizations save thousands of lives and billions of dollars throughout the United States.

42,000 lives are saved
20 million cases of disease are prevented

13.6 billion dollars in direct costs are saved

68.9 billion dollars in direct plus indirect (societal) costs are saved

For each dollar invested in these vaccinations, $10.20 is saved

Immunizations work, but in order to work correctly it’s important to know which immunizations or vaccinations you need and when to get them.

“We all need a variety of immunizations to not only help protect us throughout our lifetime, but to also help protect those around us,” said Mike Parsons, immunization outreach coordinator with Kansas Department of Health and Environment’s Bureau of Disease Control & Prevention, “August is a busy time for immunizations as children head back to school and we enter into the influenza (flu) season. Contact your health provider or local health department to see what immunizations you may need today.”

Everyone over age six months needs to be vaccinated against seasonal flu every year. Other vaccinations work best when they are given at certain ages. Here are some general guidelines:

* Children need a series of vaccinations from birth to age 6.

* Pre-teens need recommended vaccinations at age 11 or 12, as well as teenagers as they enter into high school and college, vaccinate before you graduate.

* All adults need a variety of vaccinations to prevent diseases such as whooping cough, pneumonia, influenza (flu), shingles and more.

For more information on immunizations, visit <http://www.kdheks.gov/immunize/index.html>.
