that quarter-final round and won most of them.

"It didn't slow down for us on Saturday. I thought we might be a little off on Saturday but we got it going again.

"This Norton team is one of the most improved teams I have ever coached.

"No one expected us to do this well at the beginning of the year. It has been an amazing season, especially considering that we lost two state qualifiers, Eli Bozarth and Cole Renner, to injury. To accomplish a state championship without two of your better wrestlers is even more amazing.

"John Risewick had a tremendous career. This was his second championship and he is a four-time state medalist, never having finished lower than third. Norton has now had 93 individual state champions but the number of two-time state champions is a much lower number.

"I not only want to thank our varsity wrestlers for such a tremendous season but also our junior varsity wrestlers. I've seen a lot of them rise up and help with the overall quality of our program.

"We have great support from our coaches and the Norton community and that is very much appreciated.

"Our wrestlers don't always have the best records because our losses come from wrestling quality foes. We like to wrestle tough teams because that makes us better.

"Whether we win or lose a match, we think our young man's effort is the important thing."

The Norton coaches chose the entire Norton Wrestling Team as "Norton Wrestlers of the Week" in honor of their tremendous performance.

Norton had an excellent 27-15 won-loss record and outstanding 7-1 pin ratio.

Norton's assistant coaches again this season were Doug Ray, Tony Fiscus and Shane Miller.

Student managers were Austin Hager, Jordyn Gosselin, Rickete Green and Lindsay Addington.

Matt Sims, head wrestling coach at Class 4A Colby High School, was chosen as the Officials Sportsmanship Coach of the Year and Dan Schmidt, Hoisington head wrestling coach, was selected as Class 3-2-1A Officials Sportsmanship Coach of the Year.
