Vegetable grilling helps meal

Home Time

Grilling summer vegetables can bring out seasonal flavors, but there's more good news. Learning to grill vegetables isn't difficult; it also can simplify meal preparation, reduce utility bills and make short work of cleanup.

Use heavy-duty foil or a reusable foil baking pan with an edge to prevent smaller vegetables from slipping through the grill grid. Spray the foil or pan surface with vegetable cooking spray before placing it on the grill.

Marinating vegetables in an oil-based salad dressing or marinade also can make them easier to handle and less likely to stick while cooking. Marinades should not, however, be reused after marinating meat, poultry, fish, or other similar foods.

Not all vegetables cook at the same rate, so lightly steam root vegetables such as potatoes or carrots in the microwave before adding them to a summer vegetable mixture or kebab.

Kebabs can be difficult to turn, but may be easier to manage when foods are similar in size and skewered in the center.

Allowing children to make their own kebab or choose which vegetables they would like to grill increases the likelihood that they will eat the vegetables.

Grilling vegetables like summer squash often helps them retain more texture than steaming. Grilling also can enhance flavor. For example, it highlights the sweetness and natural flavor of peppers.

Freshly grilled vegetables will, of course, be hot, and should be turned or transferred with a long-handled spatula or tongs. Grilled vegetables also should not come in contact with raw meat, poultry or fish.

Fruits such as apple, mango or nectarine slices can be grilled as accompaniments for grilled meat, poultry or fish, or for dessert.

Fire-roasted food products and flavoring mixes are becoming more common in supermarkets. The same great flavors can be achieved at home, particularly when backyard chefs are willing to be a little adventurous.

While special utensils and equipment are not necessary for grilling vegetables and most other foods, you may want to try using a non-stick pan with holes about the size of a paper punch. It simplifies grilling delicate foods such as fish or more fragile fruits and vegetables by allowing fats and juices to drain, and also makes these foods easier to turn or remove from the grill. Be sure to place vegetable grill pans to the side of the cooking area.

Look for grill gadgets and pans in hardware, kitchenware and department stores.

'Master's Hand Transforms'

By Pastor Bobby Cornelius
Oberlin Community Fellowship Church

I was at a home one time and saw a plaque on the wall with a poem entitled, "The Touch of the Master's Hand." It went like this:

Whenever your life is out of tune
And no melody soothes your soul,
Look to the Master whose gentle touch
Will bless you and make you whole

Like an old violin with so little worth

A life may be far less than grand,
But may be transformed in a moment you see,
By the touch of the Master's hand.

This is like our lives. When we are out of step with God everything goes wrong. But it just takes one second to call out to God and He can change the most hopeless situations to hope.

He can heal the broken-hearted, set those in bondage of sin, free, and put a song in their hearts.
